Our Tramp Around the City!

KENTUCKY WEATHER REPORT.

What We May Expect Between This Time and Tomorrow Evening.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU.
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 13 1892.
Special to THE PUBLIC LEDGER.
Fair and slightly warmer.
The above forecasts are made for a period of thirty-six hours, ending at 6 o'clock to-morrow evening.

He growls about the coffee and he grumbles at the steak.
And makes remarks about the bread his mother used to bake,
And makes the impression with his weary little wife.
That her cooking is the worst he ever tackled in his life.
But at noon he seeks the lunch-room and he makes a chunk of pie
And struggles in a manner that brings moisture to his eye;
He tenses down the sky-blue milk they ladle to the herd,
And hands his money to the clerk and never says a word.

DIFFICULTY NEAR LEWISBURG.

Richard Taylor and Arnett Graves Do Some Shooting and Cutting.

Richard Taylor and Arnett Graves got into a difficulty about 11 o'clock yesterday morning, which resulted in Graves being shot three times with a 32-caliber pistol in the hands of Taylor—once in the left side, once in the neck and once in the back. The shots in the side and neck were not very serious.

Dr. Dobys cut the ball from his side. Just how serious the wound in the back may prove to be he cannot tell, as he thought it advisable not to probe for the ball much on account of the position of it.

Taylor was shot in the chin and received other ugly wounds about the head.

There were no witnesses to the affray, which took place about three miles East of Lewisburg on the old Allison Calvert farm.

It was learned that the parties had visited a stillhouse in the neighborhood together some time ago, and when both were under the influence of drink had gotten into a difficulty and had not been getting along well since.

They are neighbors, Taylor having bought a passway to a public highway through Graves' place. The passway was twelve feet wide, running along the side of the field and had not been fenced, and it is claimed that when Graves plowed the field he encroached on this passway and plowed some of it up, which added to the trouble above mentioned.
